MARSH & McLENNAN AGENCY TO HOST WELLNESS CERTIFICATION PROGRAM

Attendees will earn Certified Wellness Program Coordinator (CWPC) Designation

Troy, Michigan – January 21, 2016 – The Michigan office of Marsh & McLennan Agency LLC (MMA) announced this week that it will host a two-day wellness certification program in February 2016, conducted by the Chapman Institute of Seattle, Washington.

The Chapman Institute's WellCert program is a four-level professional certification program with each level focusing on skills key to developing and managing a results-driven wellness program. Attendees that complete the two-day course will achieve Level 1 of certification, earning the designation of Certified Wellness Program Coordinator (CWPC).

The Chapman Institute conducts webinars and training sessions around the nation. This is the first time that a session will be held in Michigan. The certification training will be conducted by the organization's founder, Larry Chapman, and is open to anyone interested in pursuing their CPWC certification.

When: Tuesday, February 23, 2016 and Wednesday, February 24, 2016

Where: Marsh & McLennan Agency | Michigan
3331 W. Big Beaver Rd., Ste. 200

"Employers are incorporating wellness and employee health management into their group benefits strategy at a growing rate. We have a long tradition of providing the HR community with forward-thinking insight and educational resources to help them understand their options and achieve their business and benefits management goals. Hosting the Chapman Institute certification program is a natural extension of this practice," said Thomas P. McGraw, CEO of Marsh & McLennan Agency LLC's Michigan operations.
